BORMIO 1225MT > PASSO UMBRAIL 2503MT > PRATO ALLO STELVIO 915MT > PASSO STELVIO 2758MT > BORMIO 1225MT

Total Length	Km 100
Total Vertical Climb	ca.3190 mt

This spectacular tour allows you to discover the three sides of Stelvio Pass. The Stelvio Pass or Stilfserjoch, how it is called in German, is one of Italy's roofs with its 2758 m. At the same time, it is one of the highest Alpine Passes of Europe.

You will depart from Bormio 1215mt, reach the umbrail Pass and cross the Swiss border. The road is well kept, but for a few km the road is unpaved. You will enter Italy again in Tübingen. The flat road will conduct you to Prato allo Stelvio and then Gomagoi, where starts the South Tyrol, and hardest side of the Stelvio. The original road was built in 1820-1825 by the Austrian Empire to connect the former Austrian province of Lombardia with the rest of Austria, covering a climb of 1871 m on the Alto Adige side. Since then, the route has changed very little. The scenery is really spectacular, but you have to be well trained to enjoy the panorama!
